DAILY NATURE STUDIES AT HOLDEN VILLAGE

Sponsored by: The Holden Village Community

Railroad Creek Beaver Pond © 2010

Location: Holden Village, Lucerne WA

Description: The Holden community offers daily programs in the summertime. They are centered on renewal and learning; beginning Mondays and continue through Fridays; offered for those staying at this remote setting. Wildlife biologist and artist, Heather Murphy will be leading nature journal workshops and short hikes throughout the week of Labor Day. Bringing together gifts of art and natural science, we will explore the out-of-doors together learning about the colors of nature this year. Come for the whole week, or just pop in for a day session. Please bring a sketchbook/journal and pencil/pen.

Cost: Part of lodging registration package.

NEWSPAPER ARTICLE AND INTERNET SITE – ADD BIRDING TO YOUR LIFE LIST BY MARK OSWOOD

Sponsored by: Connecting With Nature of North Central Washington and the Wenatchee World newspaper

This birding article encourages people to observe birds, record species and their identification, and to learn about bird conservation as a result. It was published in the Wenatchee World newspaper on January 3rd 2011.

A quote: “You might search for books by Clare Walker Leslie, Hannah Hinchman or Susan Leigh Tomlinson. Better yet, visit Heather Wallis Murphy, a local master of nature journaling, at her website, www.wildtales.com.”

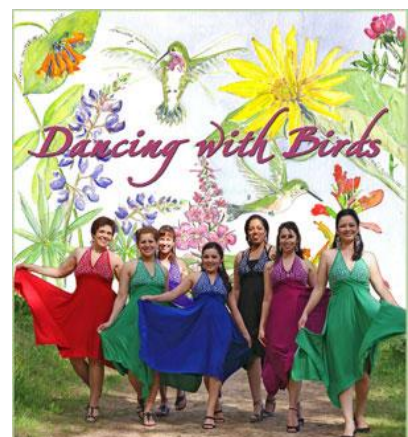

This article is written by Mark Oswood, of North Central Washington Audubon. The birding journal is from Stehekin WA in October 2007; donated for publication by artist and wildlife biologist, Heather A. Wallis Murphy.
